My responsibilities in relation to tax

This sequence is intended as a framework to be modified and adapted by teachers to suit the needs of a class group.

Resources needed

- How honest are you? Quiz
- Consequences of dishonesty Group instructions
- My responsibilities in relation to tax Explainer
- Allowable deductions Worksheet
- Writing paragraphs in Economics Model

Suggested activity sequence

Part A: Honesty

- 1 As a class, discuss the meaning of honesty. Invite students to give examples of honesty and dishonesty.
- 2 Students complete the How honest are you? Quiz.
- Invite students to share their results or if they were surprised by them.
- 4 Use a grouping strategy to organise students into groups of 3 or 4.
- 5 Groups complete a mind map by following the Group instructions.

- 6 Post mind maps on the wall.
- 7 Conduct a gallery walk and allow groups to explain their mind maps to others.
- 8 As a class discuss the collective views of the consequences of dishonesty.

Part B: Tax returns and allowable deductions

1 Students read the Explainer.

Encourage students to use the Reading for meaning strategy or take notes using the Cornell note taking system to scaffold their reading.

2 Students complete the Worksheet.

Part C: Honesty and the ATO

- 1 Explain that the Australian taxation system is based on the principle of trust and that the ATO assumes people are being honest when they submit their tax returns.
- 2 Explain that people cheat the system by either:
 - not declaring income
 - over-claiming deductions.
- Original groups brainstorm the consequences of cheating the tax system, drawing on earlier discussions around the consequences of dishonesty.

Australian Government
Australian Taxation Office

- 4 Use a discussion strategy such as a snowball discussion so that each group shares their findings with another group and so on, until the whole class is joined up in one large discussion.
- 5 Students write a paragraph explaining the consequences of people cheating the tax system for themselves, others, and broader society.
